Dear Professor Singh,

The School for Environmental and Social Studies of the University of Tyumen, Russia, greatly appreciates the cooperation with the University of Delhi, which was recently strengthened by the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding between our institutions. We believe that this MoU will mark the beginning of our productive joint work in the field of environmental and social sciences, including research, educational projects and participation in scientific events.

From 14 to 20 August 2023, the AnthroSchool will host a summer school on "The Future of Humanity and the Future of Nature: Perspectives from the Humanities and Natural Sciences". The school is designed to bring together MA students, PhD students and early career researchers from different disciplines to discuss current environmental and climate challenges in their temporal perspective.

You, dear Prof. Singh, have a vast experience in environmental studies and in teaching environmental sciences to students of economics and political science. Your papers have been published in prestigious international journals and shed light on the wide range of ecological issues facing the modern world. We would therefore like to invite you to join our Summer School as a mentor and to give a keynote lecture to the participants. We are sure that your contribution will be very important for the event and will become an important step in the cooperation between our universities. The University of Tyumen will be happy to pay for your accommodation.

With best wishes,
Director of the School for Environmental and Social Studies of the University

Alexander Sorokin
